As president, he is responsible for the fundraising, community relations, operations, and functions of the largest private humane society in Chicago. He manages an eighty-five member staff, over 200 volunteers, and a 20,000 square foot animal shelter serving 15,000 animals annually. He also oversees a veterinary hospital providing public spay/neuter services, a nationally recognized humane education program, and provides cruelty investigation with Illinois-approved humane investigators. Previous to this role, Dr. Mueller served in various departments and commissions of the City of Chicago including executive director of the Commission on Animal Care and Control, director of environmental health and senior epidemiologist, both in the Department of Public Health. Mr. Bryan became president and a director of Sara Lee Corporation in 1974 and chairman of the board in 1976. He served as chief executive officer from 1975 to 2000 and as chairman of the board until his retirement in 2001. Among a variety of civic interests in the Chicago area, Mr. Bryan is chairman of the board of trustees of The Art Institute of Chicago, a trustee of the University of Chicago, and a life trustee of Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center. He is a member and past chairman of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations, a member and past president of the Economic Club of Chicago, and a member of the Commercial Club of Chicago. Active in the arts, he led fundraising campaigns to renovate Chicago's Orchestra Hall and Lyric Opera House. Among the awards he has received are the Order of Lincoln Medallion—the state of Illinois' highest honor for individual achievement—and the Marshall Field History

Maker Award for Distinction in Corporate Leadership and Innovation from the Chicago Historical Society. Mr. Bryan holds honorary degrees from Northwestern University, Roosevelt University, Columbia College, Millsaps College (Jackson, Mississippi), and Rhodes College.

Abby Mandel is a trained chef, cookbook author, syndicated newspaper columnist, food writer, and a sustainable market activist. Her six cookbooks have included titles such as Celebrating the Midwestern Table and More Taste than Time. The latter won the IACP/Seagram and James Beard Tastemaker Best Cookbook award. Her weekly newspaper column entitled either "The Weekend Cook" or "Good Cooking" has appeared in the Chicago Tribune, Los Angeles Times, and Dallas Morning News for over fifteen years and is syndicated in many other smaller newspapers across the country. In 1989, under the auspices of the American Institute of Food and Wine, she founded "The Best of the Midwest Market" which celebrated the best small producers in the twelve Midwestern states showcasing eighty juried producers who exhibited and sold produce, cheeses, meats, fish, game, beer, and wine. In 1999, she founded "Chicago's Green City Market," the city's first sustainable green market, now in its fourth season. Ms. Mandel received a B.A. degree from Smith College and a Master of Social Work from Wayne State University. She also studied at La Varenne Cooking School (Paris) and trained in twenty-five of the most distinguished restaurant kitchens in France, Switzerland, and Belgium.

Paul Heltne, Ph.D. is co-founder, senior research fellow, and director of the Cities Project for the Center for Humans and Nature and president emeritus of the Chicago Academy of Sciences. After graduating summa cum laude from Luther College, he entered the M.D.-Ph.D. program in the University of Chicago Division of Biological Sciences. During the program, he traveled to South Africa and Namibia to do physical anthropological and paleontological research with Dr. Ronald Singer of the university. He also attended the Fundamentals of Tropical Biology course in Costa Rica and Panama, did field research on primates in the Canal Zone and Peru, and made field trips into the Caribbean to study the biogeography of ants. After graduating with a Ph.D., Dr. Heltne continued his research at Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine and led a National Academy of Sciences survey of primates in various South American countries. In 1982, he accepted the position of director, later president, of the Chicago Academy of Sciences. There he led two nationally recognized initiatives in outreach education to inner city and rural schools and co-organized a major symposium on the similarity of creativity in the arts and sciences.
